HIGHLIGHTS FROM THE OPENING SPEECHES

Ms. Phan Thi Thang

Deputy Minister of Industry and Trade

Speaking at the Opening Ceremony of the Exhibition, Deputy Minister of Industry and Trade Phan Thị Thăng noted that Vietnam's textile and garment industry has made significant contributions to economic development, social security, and macroeconomic stability, earning the trust and support of countries, territories, organizations, and investors both at home and abroad.

In 2025, Vietnam's textile and garment exports reached USD 46.2 billion, up 6% from 2024, maintaining its position among the world's top three exporters, with a trade surplus of USD 21 billion. Vietnamese textile products are now present in 138 markets worldwide, with a domestic value-added rate of about 52%, reflecting growing self-reliance in local raw material supply.

The domestic market of over 100 million people also shows strong potential, with enterprises focusing on brand development, design improvement, eco-friendly products, and expanding e-commerce channels. In 2025, the domestic market size was about USD 5.5 billion, slightly higher than 2024, supported by campaigns promoting Vietnamese goods, effective trade promotion policies, and stronger market management. Consumers are increasingly prioritizing locally made textile products with assured quality, safety, and diverse designs.

"Vietnam's policy is to develop a balanced approach between export and domestic markets, effectively tapping into the vast potential of the domestic market while enhancing competitiveness internationally. SaigonTex & SaigonFabric provide valuable opportunities for textile and garment enterprises to access modern technologies and sustainable materials, connect with reputable partners and potential customers, promote trade, increase product value-added, gradually raise localization rates, and meet rules of origin requirements under Trade Agreements," Deputy Minister Phan Thị Thăng emphasized.

HIGHLIGHTS FROM THE OPENING SPEECHES

Mr. Cao Huu Hieu

President & CEO of Vietnam National Textile – Garment Group (VINATEX)

At the opening of SaigonTex – SaigonFabric 2026, Mr. Cao Hữu Hiếu, General Director of Vinatex, emphasized that the exhibition remains a vital bridge connecting enterprises, suppliers, and international partners. It showcases advanced technologies and sustainable materials, while serving as a forum to share trends, foster cooperation, and drive innovation for the sustainable growth of Vietnam’s textile industry.

“In 2026, the industry is facing greater challenges as global geopolitical and trade fluctuations continue to intensify, directly impacting supply chains and production costs. With the export turnover target of USD 49 billion in 2026, diversifying markets, products, and customers has become a key orientation, requiring the textile and garment industry to undergo strong transformation. Investment in technology, digital transformation, and the development of high value-added products will be decisive factors. Enterprises must proactively restructure production, enhance adaptability, and optimize costs to maintain efficiency and competitiveness,” Mr.Cao Hữu Hiếu emphasized.

Mr. Truong Van Cam

Vice Chairman of Vietnam Textile and Apparel Association (VITAS)

Mr. Trương Văn Cẩm, Vice Chairman of VITAS, emphasized that despite global economic uncertainties from conflicts in Ukraine and the Middle East, Vietnam’s textile industry must act decisively to maintain its position among the world’s top three exporters. With 2025 exports reaching USD 46.2 billion and a trade surplus of USD 20.7 billion, and a 2026 target of USD 49 billion, key priorities include diversifying markets, customers, and products; strengthening domestic raw material production and supply chains; investing in technology, AI, and workforce training; advancing green and circular practices; and building Vietnamese brands for both domestic and international markets.

“This year’s exhibition brings together all the essential elements to support the implementation of these solutions. I firmly believe that with the active participation of domestic and international enterprises, along with the support of government agencies, associations, and international organizations, the exhibition will continue to affirm its role as a key platform for innovation, cooperation, and sustainable development in the textile industry. I encourage Vietnamese enterprises to make the most of this opportunity by:

- Proactively seeking new technologies and solutions
- Expanding international cooperation and building strong, mutually beneficial partnerships
- Enhancing competitiveness, adaptability, and resilience.

At the same time, I hope international partners will continue to engage, cooperate, and invest in Vietnam’s textile industry—an energetic, stable, and highly promising sector” Vice Chairman Truong Van Cam emphasized.
